

Ralitsa Dimitrova Raycheva, PhD

Education:

MEcon – Master of Economics, 2000

PhD – “Health Technology Assessment – capacity building and institutionalization. Bulgarian perspectives.”, 2016

Professional development:

2010 – 2011, Assistant professor, Dept. of Health management, health economics and general medicine”

2011 – 2016, Assistant professor, Dept. of Social medicine and public health

2016 – current, Senior assistant professor, Dept. of Social medicine and public health

Specializations:

Health economics, 2013

Medical informatics and health management (currently)

Scientific Interests:

Health technology assessment, health economics, biostatistics and modeling, health informatics

Membership:

HTAi – Health Technology Assessment International

Publications:

1. Raycheva, Ralitsa D., et al. "The vulnerability to burn out in healthcare personnel according to the Stoyanov-Cloninger model: evidence from a pilot study." International Journal of Person Centered Medicine 2.3 (2012): 552-563.
2. Iskrov, Georgi G., Ralitsa D. Raycheva, and Rumen S. Stefanov. "Insight into reimbursement decision-making criteria in Bulgaria: implications for orphan drugs." Folia medica 55.3-4 (2013): 80-86.
3. Kevorkyan, A., Teoharov, P., Lernout, T., Petrova, N., Raycheva, R., Ivanov, I., ... & Kojouharova, M. (2015). Prevalence of HBV and HCV among outpatients in the Plovdiv region of Bulgaria, 2010–2011. Journal of medical virology, 87(3), 401-406.

Textbooks:

1. Clinical Epidemiology. Editor Prof. J. Stoilova. Raikov Publishing, 2013, Plovdiv, Bulgaria